

COULD NOT SEE HUBBY GO TO JAIL

Instead of Prosecuting, Mrs. Hyman Started Toward Fresno With Hyman

When it got right down to the sticking point, Mrs. Joseph Hyman would not see her husband taken to jail. In five minutes time she turned from the declaration that she would swear to a complaint against him to a declaration that she would pay his way to Fresno, from which place Hyman in company with Miss Florence Smith, daughter of H. H. Smith of Reedley, ran away last Sunday.

After Hyman was brought into the city hall yesterday by City Marshal Edwards and Officer Hamilton, the city marshal went forth to find the girl. Mrs. Hyman taunted her as she was taken into the city hall by the officer. Mrs. Hyman was in a highly nervous state and seemed hardly responsible for the things she said. There was no curtain lecture about the tongue-lashing she delivered Hyman. Mrs. Caudle at her severest could not have said the sarcastic things flung at Hyman, as Mrs. Hyman and Hyman, the latter in charge of an officer, waited at the city hall.

Mrs. Hyman told Hyman and later told the girl he had eloped with that she would shoot them both had she a gun.

H. H. Smith, father of the runaway girl, took everything as cool as though he were used to such affairs. All he cared about was getting the girl to go back home with him.

When the officers told Mrs. Hyman that the time had arrived for her to go to the district attorney's office with them and swear to a complaint, Mrs. Hyman decided that she did not want to prosecute. She opened her purse and showed the officers that she had plenty of money to pay her own way and Hyman's way to Fresno.

So they departed, Mrs. Hyman having in custody her husband, and H. H. Smith, having in custody his daughter.

BOYS TO CAMP AT CATALINA

Y. M. C. A. to be Divided Into Two Sections for This Year's Annual Outing

The third annual camp of the Orange County Y. M. C. A. boys will be held at Catalina, July 30, to Aug. 24.

The first camp at Huntington Beach was composed of thirty-one boys and five leaders. Last year at Camp Wilson at Catalina there were sixty-six boys and ten leaders, and because of the widespread interest, the boys' work committee has decided to hold the camp in two sections this year.

The Juniors, boys under 16 years, will go July 30th and return Aug. 11th. The older boys, 16 to 20 years, will go Aug. 12th and return the 24th.

The fee will be $10.00 this year. A camp folder is being prepared, and any boy desiring to go should write S. Warren Douglas, Anaheim, for a folder and get his application in early, as the accommodations will be limited.

The boys' work committee is Geo. B. Key, Fullerton; Wm. Starbuck, Fullerton; Prof. O. J. Hankey, Fullerton; Dr. W. H. Wickett, Anaheim; H. W. Lewis, Tustin; Geo. M. Ross, Anaheim.

Percy Angle has returned from a week's sojourn at Newport Beach where he has been getting in trim for the battle Sunday. Percy is one of the leading stickers of the team.

Effie Hill, the youngest girl balloonist in the United States, will make the ascension immediately after the ball game.

NO "REGISTER" MONDAY
The Register will not be published Monday, for several reasons.
In the first place, out of respect for Memorial Day and what it stands for.
In the second place, in order that the Register staff may have a much needed day of rest.
In the third place, because there will be little or no local news of very much interest and importance, the business houses, courts, etc., being closed.

POWER OF SUGGESTION

Another young man has fallen victim to the suggestions that are contained in the cheaper quality of moving picture shows, which almost invariably deal in crime or lewdness. Those that exhibit real art or teach moral lessons are to be commended, but the cheap and trashy kind that merely illustrate the yellow novel, or the yellow newspaper, are vicious in the extreme.

The young man in question has not a bad look, judging from his picture, but has probably fallen into bad company which prepared the way for his downfall, and making a visit to Los Angeles, ran up against one of the villainous exhibitions that are so much in evidence there, and gained an inspiration on the subject of counterfeiting.

He is now under sentence in Arizona for trying to put the picture show idea into practice. But there are others who will follow, and are even now following in his footsteps, unmindful of the warning. How long will it be before the lesson that "honesty is the best policy" as well as the correct thing in and of itself, sufficiently impresses itself on the minds of old and young to keep everybody, except for crimes of violence, out of the penitentiary?

A Memorial Day Thought

By J. P. BAUMGARTNER

What does America expect of her young men in time of peace? Just exactly the same thing she expects of them in time of war—that is, to be brave and true and unselfish; to do their full duty according to a quickened and patriotic conscience; to give their LIVES to her service. Not necessarily or probably to DIE for her—though it may be even that—but surely to live for her. Robert Louis Stevenson, one of the truly great souls, has thus summed up the manly qualities:

"To be honest, to be kind; to earn a little and to spend a little less; to make, upon the whole, a family happier for his presence; to renounce when that shall be necessary, and not be embittered; to keep a few friends, but these without capitulation; above all, on the same grim condition, to keep friends with himself—here is a task for all that a man has of fortitude and delicacy."

Every thoughtful young man must realize that there are moral battles to be fought in times of peace that require certainly as high an order of courage—if, indeed, a higher order be not needed—as ever carried a soldier over the ramparts of the enemy when the bloody battle was at its zenith. There are great principles at stake in these bloodless battles of peace—as great as any that ever rent a country asunder so widely that only a sea of blood could cement it together again!

These battles arise in every walk of life—at the polls, in legislative halls of city, state and nation, in the pulpit and at the bar, on the lecture platform and in the schoolroom and at the editor's desk, in hospital and sick room, in store and counting house, in factory and field and mart, and even at the home fireside.

I think I do not need to tell you what these battles are. Theodore Roosevelt has been fighting them at Washington. Rudolph Spreckles and Francis J. Heney are fighting them in San Francisco. They are being fought in Los Angeles. In almost every city and state in the nation the war on vice and graft is waging. Every honest and independent newspaper in this country is fighting these battles. Every school teacher who realizes his responsibility and his opportunity is fighting them by the principles he exalts in his teaching and exemplifies by his life. Every good citizen is fighting them at the polls—the silent battle of the ballots.

This is the lime-light phase of this war of peace. But there is another kind of fighting to be done: The heroic bearing of burdens, the silent secret fight against temptation, the smiling of that smile that hides the broken heart, the faithful performance of duty in the face of misunderstanding and unjust judgment—these are some of the battles America expects her young men to fight in times of peace.

A great burden of responsibility, do you think? Yes. But not greater than you can bear. Not one that should bow your head or bend your shoulders. Not one that should dull your eye and cause your hand to tremble. Not one that should sicken your soul. But rather one that should gird your loins and quicken the strong beat of your heart. One that should cause your eye to flash and make your muscles sing like the taut strings of a fine violin. One that should cause your footfalls to ring on the pavement and send you up and down the stairs three at a jump. What soldier ever won a battle, who considered the fighting of it a burden and a hardship? And what battle was ever lost that was well fought? To fight the good fight—that is victory.

What does America expect of her young men in times of peace? Just what their mothers and fathers expect of them; just what their Heavenly Father expects of them. Just what their sisters and brothers expect of them; just what Jesus, their eldest brother, expects of them.

And this expectation is not fully met by fighting. There is something else to be done in times of war besides fighting. There is uncomplaining and patient waiting. "They also serve who only stand and wait," said John Milton, courageously facing in his blindness the long black stretch of the years that lay before him. "That one talent which is death to hide, lodged with me, useless! Thousands at his bidding speed o'er land and ocean without rest; they also serve who only stand and wait." If it be your part in the bloodless battles of peace to "only stand and wait," stand like a soldier, with shoulders back, head up; and "wait patiently for Him and He will give you, your heart's desire."

In times of war, too, there is the work of nursing the sick and binding up the wounds of the stricken; this also is the duty of young men in times of peace. There are the sick and wounded all round about us, sick of soul, broken of heart, weak and weary and heavy laden. America expects her young men to lend a helping hand to these, to speak the word of cheer and encouragement, to give material assistance if need be, to do all those things which make for sweeter and better lives, and lead to the final great victory over death and the grave.

"I shall pass through this world but once; therefore any good act I can perform or kind word I can speak to any one, let me do it NOW, for I shall not pass this way again."

Just one more parallel. The good soldier, whether in time of war or time of peace, never gives up. He doesn't know when he is whipped. Indeed he never is whipped. America expects her soldiers of peace to be that kind of soldiers. The battle of life is oft-times discouraging, seemingly well-nigh hopeless, but the true soldier never falters. "He has come the way of the fighting men and fought by the rules of the Game."

And out of Life he has gathered—what? A living—and little fame. Ever and ever the Goal looms near—seeming each time worth while. But ever it proves a mirage fair—ever the grim gods smile. And so, with lips hard set and white, he buries the hope that is gone—His fight is lost—and he knows it is lost—and yet he is fighting on.

Out of the smoke of the battle-line, watching men win their way, And cheering with those who cheer success, he enters again the fray, Licking the blood and dust from his lips, wiping the sweat from his eyes, He does the work he is set to do, and—'therein honor lies.' Brave they were, those men he cheered, theirs is the winners' thrill; His fight is lost—and he knows it is lost—and yet he is fighting still.

And those who have won, have rest and peace; and those who have died, have more;

But, weary and spent, he cannot stop, seeking the ultimate score. Courage was theirs for a little time—but what of the man who sees That lose he must, yet will not beg for mercy, upon his knees? Side by side with grim gray Death, he struggles at dusk or dawn; His fight is lost—and he knows it is lost—and yet he is fighting on.

Praise for the warriors who sneered, and fears for the vanquished dead, The World will hold them close to her heart, wreathing each honored head; But there in the ranks, soul-sick, time-tried, he battles against the odds, Sans hope, but true to his colors torn, the plaything of the gods! Uncover when he goes by at last! Held to his task by will— The fight is lost—and he knows it is lost—and yet he is fighting still!"

How large is that sphere? and does woman occupy it? are questions that will be considered in this address, which is a companion lecture to one delivered on the "Rights of Men," two weeks ago. Men as well as women will be interested in this address.

Westmoreland Club

Yesterday afternoon the Westmoreland Sunflower Club met with Mrs. G. G. Richards of Orange, the ladies taking the car from here as far as Orange and then with a delightful walk of a mile or so, they reached the home of Mrs. Richards.

The afternoon was spent in a guessing contest, which created a lot of fun and a pleasant time, the names of animals being the subject of guessing. Mrs. Richards served delicious fruitade, angelfood cake, oranges and candied walnuts. She was assisted by her sisters, Mrs. A. A. Richards and Miss Arvilla Barnett. The club had as guests, Mrs. G. L. Niles of Orange, who was formerly of Wamego, Kan., near Westmoreland, Mrs. Joe Stroup of Los Angeles, Messrs. P. G. Etchison, A. A. Richards, G. G. Richards. The ladies had a delightful time returning home, Mr. Richards obligingly furnishing transportation to Orange.

"At Home" at Mrs. Heil's

At the home of Mrs. C. F. Heil yesterday afternoon, the ladies of the First Methodist church held their monthly "At Home." A large attendance evidenced the pleasure always enjoyed at these meetings.

Miss Corlie Crane gave a reading and Miss Gladys Burns played a piano number. Conversation and refreshments, with a generous silver offering, closed the day.

Pretty Exercises

The pupils of the first and second grades of Central school had a particularly interesting afternoon yesterday, when the little ones joined in patriotic exercises in Miss Collings' room. Miss Collings was assisted by Miss Shure of the second grade.

The room was hung with flags. There were flag drills by the children and patriotic songs and recitations galore. The children entered into the Memorial spirit of the day, yesterday being the time when the public schools observed Memorial Day with appropriate exercises.

The Mouse Trap

The young ladies of the Amphion Circle of the Congregational church gave "The Mouse Trap," a delightful little farce by William Dean Howells, at the residence of Mrs. F. P. Nickey last night. "The Mouse Trap" is an exploitation of the vagaries of the suffragette, so much in the limelight at present. Miss Leslie Roberts held the leading part of Mrs. Somers, a fascinating young widow, engaged to Mr. Campbell, the literary bachelor, taken by Prof. Bartlett. Miss Roberts showed marked histrionic talent, and in voice and rendition of lines was a great surprise to her many friends, all of whom hope to see her, in the near future, in a part which will give more scope to her talents. Mr. Bartlett, as the only man in the cast, was eminently satisfactory in a somewhat exacting part. Miss Daisy Roberts as Mrs. Miller, Mrs. E. B. Trago as Mrs. Curwin, Miss Blanche Tiede as Mrs. Roberts, Miss Nellie Nay as Mrs. Bemus, and Miss Jean Humphreys as Jane, the maid, all took their parts with great vivacity and the action of the play moved along gratifyingly.

The general verdict was that the entertainment was all too short, and the universal hope was expressed that there might be more of the same order in the near future. The house was crowded to the extreme capacity and a handsome sum was realized for the pipe organ fund.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The Memorial exercises in the high school yesterday afternoon were very interesting, an excellent address by Rev. F. S. Haugawout, substituting for Col. O. H. Coulter, being the principal feature of the occasion. Rev. Haugawout, a former chaplain of the civil war, spoke on "The Horrors of War" in a graphic way. He expressed the ardent hope that the boys and girls of this generation might never behold a repetition of the days of the sixties.

Mr. Kemp of the San Diego Normal School was present and spoke on the normal course of study. A double quartette rendered the "Star Spangled Banner" and Guy Gale delivered Lincoln's immortal Gettysburg address. The exercises closed with the singing of "America" by the entire audience.

Memorial exercises, with addresses by the veterans, accompanied by various recitations and singing were given at the different grade schools during the afternoon.

Oratorical Contest

On June 4, the oratorical contest between four groups of contestants representing the high schools of Southern California embraced in the Debating League, will take place in the auditorium of Los Angeles Normal.

The speakers are winners in the various groups of high schools to which their particular school belongs. There are 17 schools in the league. The winner of this final contest will win a gold medal and first place. The essays have already been passed on by U. S. C., Occidental College and Throop Polytechnic Institute, being marked on diction and composition, these counting half on points.

ATLANTIC FLEET WILL MEET IN HAMPTON ROADS

White Squadron Will Be No More—Dull Gray Will Be the Coating of the Uncle Sams War Vessels

WASHINGTON, May 29.—The battleship fleet of the United States Navy will reassemble at Hampton Roads again on June 15 to take up the never-ending game of making ready for war at which half the nations of the earth are constantly playing.

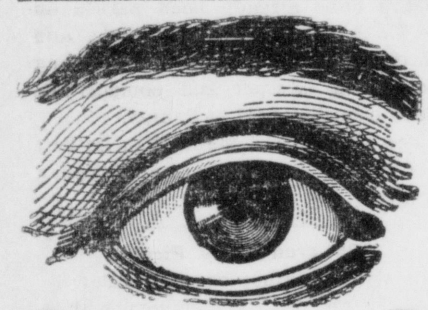

The summer maneuvers, to which the following several weeks will be devoted, will be another chapter in the recent chronicle of American naval events in which the voyage around the world occupied so important a part.

The place of the rendezvous will be the same as that from which the battleships started on their momentous voyage, and the same at which they arrived last February. The ships, too, will be the same with the exception of the New Hampshire, Idaho and Mississippi, which have been substituted for the Illinois, Kearsarge and Kentucky, now held in reserve. In appearance, however, the fleet will be vastly different.

The white squadron is no more. The covering of the ships is now gray, lustreless paint as nearly as possible and form by training its officers and men to be ready for war at a moment's notice. President Roosevelt reiterated time and again the advantages of this policy. President Taft has adopted much the same view, by removing from responsible positions officers who are on the retired list.

When the reassembled fleet sails out to sea this summer, it will be to play the game of war more energetically than ever. The maneuvers will be far more important in this respect than was the voyage around the world. This journey demonstrated the fleet's quality for steaming and placed in the hands of the department valuable data for guidance in the construction of the ships of the future. Attention is now to be concentrated upon fighting qualities. To this end the fleet will be divided and the game of war carried on with auxiliaries, cruisers and scout cruisers, as well as torpedo boats.

One of the most important features of the maneuvers will be the firing of the big guns under battle conditions. Target practice will take place not at measured distance as heretofore, but in a rolling sea such as might be encountered were the fleet moving forward to attack a real enemy.

The value of the waste-basket masts in which the fire control instruments are mounted is expected to be fully established. The torpedo boat will be tried out as an instrument of naval warfare used in conjunction with battleships. So many improvements have been made in the torpedo that it is likely to figure much more prominently in naval engagements in the future than it has in the past, both by reason of increased accuracy of control and length of range.

Generally speaking, it is believed that these maneuvers will mark a new epoch in the American navy. The game of war will be played more energetically and more scientifically than ever before. And whether the ships are at sea or in port, they will always have the appearance of engines of destruction as an ever present reminder that the prospect of war is as seriously considered in the United States as it is in the countries overseas where the fear of the world powers is being expressed in constantly growing naval budgets and the rapidly increasing number of launchings of the grim leviathans of war.

The Signal Corps of the army, profiting by the experience of Captain Charles de F. Chandler and First Lieutenant James F. Ware, who narrowly escaped losing their lives by the explosion of army balloon No. 12 near Fort Omaha recently, is trying to devise some means of preventing similar accidents by the discharge of static electricity as the aerial vessels come in contact with the earth.

Captain Chandler, in his report to the department, suggests that before making a landing, especially with balloons having silk envelopes, they be maintained at a low altitude as long as possible before touching the earth so that any electricity they may have accumulated may be dissipated. He recommends also that a loop of light wire be caught around the gas bag and connected with a small flexible wire woven into the guide rope allowing the spark to pass to earth at a safe distance below the inflammable gas.

Captain Chandler in his report says: "After passing over Homer, Nebraska, the course soon carried the balloon clear of the rough ground and over the flat lowland plains of the Missouri river valley. The valve was opened at a height of 3112 feet and we descended to make a landing. Rapid descent was necessary because a lake, and the Missouri river lay directly ahead of us.

While descending, the rip cord was taken out of its sack and hung down beside the pilot ready for use, but just as the guide rope neared the ground, the end fouled around a telegraph or telephone line and stopped the balloon with a jerk which threw me off my feet and also threw the rip cord out beyond reach from the car. The guide rope soon released itself and the anchor was dropped; it bounded along the ground across a small field and caught in a wire fence. The valve was opened before catching the fence and was held open. The force of the wind was sufficient to break the appendix ropes which allowed the balloon to parachute but the anchor held and very soon it was noticed that almost half the gas was out.

"While in this situation, the car settled down gently to the ground twice, rising a few feet again each time, but the gas did not get near the ground until after the car picked up the second time then a gust of wind swung the half empty envelope down toward the ground and the gas exploded and burned. The report was heard several miles. The force of the explosion broke the loading ring into three parts, tore the balloon into pieces, and broke the valve and many of the ropes near the loading ring. The explosion ignited the envelope and it was completely consumed together with most of the net.

"At the time of the explosion of the gas, Lieutenant Ware and I were down low in the car holding the valve open and thereby protected somewhat from the flame, but the force was sufficient to knock us and the car over, resulting in several bruises on each of us, the most serious being small cuts on the forehead and around the eye of Lieutenant Ware. Lieutenant Ware was facing the bag. The back of my head struck something and stunned me, but I regained consciousness in a few moments without assistance.

"The ignition of the gas was probably caused by a static discharge between the balloon and the earth as soon as the envelope came near the ground. Several cases of ignition from this cause have been reported in Europe. The envelope of Balloon No. 12 was made of silk and rubber fabric, and at 3000 feet altitude might have acquired a static charge of electricity of different potential than the earth, retaining it during the rapid descent, or perhaps the charge was acquired on account of the friction of the air against the silk during the rapid descent. There were no other people within seventy-five yards of the balloon at the time of the explosion, and it is not apparent how the gas could have ignited from any other cause than an electric spark. There were no flint rocks, stones, metal or timber where the bag exploded, therefore it was impossible to have received a spark from friction of two bodies striking together."

LOS ANGELES PRODUCE MARKET

Quite a flurry was caused on the market yesterday morning by the arrest of four of the largest commission merchants on the street, who were accused of violating the ordinance for unloading their products directly to the sidewalk instead of on platforms, as prescribed by an old law, and another for handling berries, fruits and vegetables in uncovered trays, baskets and crates. The matter was at once taken up with an attorney and the ordinances will be given a test to determine their validity as soon as a day for trial is appointed.

White figs from Yuma were received in a large shipment and the price on them was lower than at first expected. They retailed at 75 cents per half box, all of them coming in that pack. Blacks were worth up to 1.75 per full box. Cherries were practically unchanged in value, and there were larger arrivals of whites than for several days past. Total cherry receipts were about 1200 boxes. Buying was good for the Saturday trade. Apricots were down fractionally.

Eggs were firm and unchanged in value. Sales of locals were above normal and receipts were good—800 cases. There were some fair arrivals from the coast district. Eastern storage are selling well and receipts are still large.

Butter arrivals totaled 23,116 pounds. The market on all butter remained firm and some of the first eastern stock was reported as coming in. The real shipment of eastern will not begin till the end of June. Cooking butter sold well.

Northern fresh cheese firmed up ½ cent a pound. The expected decline in eastern Daisy and Longhorn cheese arrived and 1 cent was cut from former quotations, making the selling price 20 cents. Arrivals of cheese were only 251 pounds.

Fancy Oregon spuds were very high. A car was offered at 2.75, at which figure the market stayed. Other stock was accordingly firm. Only half a car of outside potatoes was received. Three cars of onions were brought in and the market acted weaker accordingly. White wax are the most fancy stock on the market at present and they are selling down as low as 1.00 per crate.

Cucumbers were lower in all varieties, those from Texas, Coachella and also local hothouse stock. The average price on local cukes dropped to 1.00 per dozen, while Coachella sold at 1.75 to 2.00 a crate. Cabbage was about the same, there being more of it on the market than the trade could assimilate. Lettuce was low and asparagus was unchanged, although receipts have been lighter right along. The demand has been decreased as well.

The demand for dried apples has caused the quotations on this stock to rise to 10 cents a pound. Dried apples, like apricots, have been about cleaned up. Raisins are selling slowly and muscatels are in fair demand. Warm weather is rapidly causing the raisins to sugar and, unless consumed in a few months, those still in the hands of the packers will prove an entire loss. Prunes are moving a little too slowly to move the stock still on hand.

Lee B. Warren, who on Aug. 31, 1908, secured a marriage license here to marry Nell Summers, aged 16, of Fresno, Warren giving her age as 19, is in the county jail in Los Angeles on a charge of grand larceny. After securing the license here, Warren married the girl in Fresno, and County Clerk Williams still has the unused license in his office. After the license was issued here, the girl's father contemplated bringing a charge of perjury against Warren in this county.

A FREAK GOSLING TRAMPED TO DEATH

J. C. McDowell's Four-Legged
Bird Met Death From a
Two-Legged Variety

J. C. McDowell of Talbert, was in town this morning with a dead curiosity—a four-legged gosling.

The youngster was hatched nine days ago, and started bravely on life's journey. He had full use of all four legs, though one forward leg seemed to have an especially healthy kick that often turned the gosling over on his back. Except for the freak of an extra pair of legs the youngster was like other healthy goslings.

But he was trampled to death by a gosling of the two-legged variety. The two-legged gosling was put into a box with the four-legged gosling to keep the freak warm during the night. This morning the four-legged gosling was dead. Mr. McDowell will have the freak mounted.

STARTLED THOUSANDS

Santa Ana Public Gaze With Awe on the Marvelous Work Done by the Great "Kamama" — Each Night Proves a Great Success—He Relieves Deafness, Stiff Arms, Rheumatism, Paralysis, Before the Eyes of Excited Thousands.

The Great Kamama gave his second demonstration and free entertainment last night at the Free Show Grounds at the corner of Broadway and Fourth street, in the presence of thousands of people. As early as 7 o'clock people congregated on the lot, all eager to get a glimpse of Kamama. There was the merchant, the banker, the laboring man, the shop girls, the newsboys, which composed the different strata of humanity. Some were deaf, others were lame with paralysis, rheumatism; others came out of mere curiosity. The band concert and entertainment was great, but the best of all was the Great Kamama when he appeared. Kamama made one demonstration after the other with what appeared to be miraculous results. Kamama told of his reasons for visiting Santa Ana to introduce his European methods of bloodless surgery, and told how the sick and afflicted could be cured by this method. Kamama called for people that were suffering from stiff arms, deafness, rheumatism, etc., and, in response to this liberal offer, many prominent people came upon the platform.

Now Walks Without Crutches
Mrs. Jane Durocher of Santa Barbara, California, for years was on the streets a cripple, struggling about the streets on crutches, a pitiful sight. The affliction started three years ago when she was confined to her bed a hopeless cripple, and only at times being able to walk with the aid of crutches. After taking three treatments with Kamama she is able to walk without crutches and now is cured.

Tumor Removed
Lewis K. Skillman of Anacapa street, Santa Barbara, Cal., suffered for years with a tumor on his back. Fearful of undergoing the torture of the surgeon's knife, Mr. Skillman placed himself in the care of Kamama. Without knife, blood or pain the tumor was removed by the bloodless method and was entirely cured.

Cures That Will Live in History
The new European method of treating the sick is as far above other methods as an electric light is above the tallow candle. As one gentleman was heard to say: "it is more easy to understand what has earned this man the title of Great Kamama after seeing these wonderful demonstrations." Last night the lecture announced that Kamama has established commodious offices in the Hotel Kessmore. At an early hour this morning the offices were filled to overflowing with people waiting to see the Great Kamama. All day long he is kept busy treating the sick and afflicted. All diseases of a chronic nature of men, women and children will be treated by his new methods. No incurable cases will be accepted for treatment. As the crowds which call upon the doctor are so large a fee of $1.00 will be charged for consultation.

Office hours, from 10 to 12, 2 to 4, and 7 to 8.—Adv.
